

El Dorado Hills Town Center snags telecom company as new office tenant

Jun 2, 2016, 7:07am PDT

Local telecommunications company O1 Communications is moving its headquarters to El Dorado Hills Town Center.

The new, nearly 3,000-square-foot office is on an upper floor of the mixed-use building on Town Center Boulevard, the main street of the development.

The company is moving its headquarters from one of the business parks in El Dorado Hills off Latrobe Road.

Founded in 1998, O1 is a wholesale network telecommunications carrier, and it also is a retail business telephone provider, which it does through cloud-based services.

O1 will now provide free public Wi-Fi throughout the Town Center, and its phone and high-speed internet service is available as an option to any business in the center.

“It is a great addition. They have terrific service, and they are local,” said Kevin Nagle, co-owner of the Mansour/Nagle partnership, which owns Town Center.

Like Nagle, Brad Jenkins, co-founder of O1, is a member of the ownership of both the Sacramento Kings and the Sacramento Republic.

Nagle, a former health care executive, has branched out into real estate, sports, movie production, venture capital investing and private equity investing.
